The Romulus Jr. High

School Concert and Symphonic Bands both received coveted First Division ratings at the District XII Junior High School Band Festival recently at Romulus Senior High School. This marked only the second time in the history of the Romulus Schools that both groups have earned the "I" rating at the district level. The Concert Band scored its highest rating ever at the District Festival receiving two "I"s and a "II" in the prepared music section and a "I" in sight reading. The Symphonic Band received 16 "A"s out of a possible 20 letter grades from the four judges at the festival. The First Division Rating marked the fifth consecutive "I" rating the Symphonic Band at the district festival level.

Appointed

Gibson named assistant purchasing agent

The City of Romulus has a new purchasing agent this week, following his introduction to members of the City Council Monday night by Mayor Beverly McAnally.

Durwood "Bud" Gibson, former purchasing agent for the City of Westland, assumed the position Tuesday. He will be working under Finance Director Patsy Cantrell.

Gibson has joined the city's administrative staff, following his controversial dismissal by Westland Mayor Charles Pickering in February. He had worked for that city since July 1978 and as its purchasing agent since September of that year. He was fired by Pickering because "he wasn't doing the job for my administration," although several members of the Westland City Council maintain that

"Why is it that every time we hire someone we go out of the city to do it?"

— Councilman Jim Raspberry

the dismissal was politically motivated.

Married and the father of two children, Gibson will be moving from Westland to Romulus to conform to the latter's residency requirement.

His appointment drew comment from one city councilman, who pressured McAnally as to where the hiring was published.

"Why is it that every time we hire someone we go out of the city to do it," Jimmie Raspberry asked the mayor, "when we probably have qualified people right here in Romulus?"

"We talk about trying to get new businesses that come into our area to hire residents, but I hate to think what they would say if they could hear this."

Raspberry added that this was nothing personal against Gibson, who he said was "undoubtedly qualified," but something that should be made note of in the future.

When asked where the job opening had been advertised, Mayor McAnally replied "in the newspapers." When asked which papers, she admitted "the Free Press and Detroit News."

"We have a newspaper here, Mayor," said Raspberry, "the Romulus Roman. It's our official newspaper, and I feel it should have been advertised there. That's where I would think people from Romulus would look for a job here."

McAnally responded that "it's a weekly. I advertised in the dailies."

U of M reinstates Huron High School

Huron High School, which was put on academic probation by the University of Michigan in 1981, has been returned to full accreditation.

Superintendent of Schools Gary Jackson received notice of this development last week in a letter from Kent W. Leach of the University of Michigan accreditation staff.

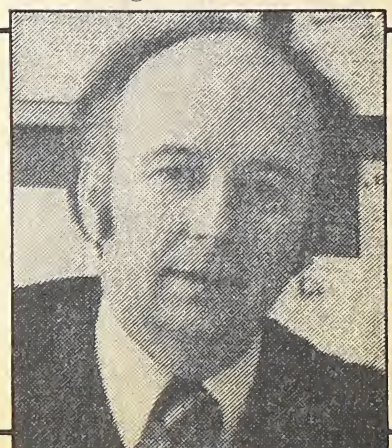

"We wish to inform you that the New Boston Huron High School is on the list of secondary schools fully accredited by the University of Michigan," the letter read.

"This status will be continued as long as the school meets the University's accreditation standards."

"This action was taken at a recent meeting of the accreditation

"It required the cooperation of the school board, the community, the staff of the school system and the students."

— School Superintendent Gary Jackson

advisory committee of the Bureau of School Services," he added in the communication.

The decision was the most important development in recent times for the once-beleaguered school system.

The school had been cited Dec. 4, 1981 for 14 violations ranging from charges of a lack of counselors to inadequate building maintenance and care. While all 11 of these infractions have been corrected, there is still one violation concerning the length of the school day. That is a development that U of M weighs less lightly because of the general money shortage, according to Jackson.

This is regarded as another major advance for the school system which comprises 1,800 students and a faculty of 94.

"It is an achievement. And it occurred as a result of a team effort," Jackson said of the recent accreditation.

"It required the cooperation of the school board, the community, the staff of the school system, and the students," he added.

In the past 21 months, counseling services have been restored, an assistant principal has been hired for the high school, a strong extra-curricular program funded by outside resources has been established, two major curriculum adoptions have been implemented (math and science), a comprehensive grade one-thru-11 standardized testing program has been adopted, maintenance of all buildings and grounds has been improved (including major roof repair), adequate secretarial help restored, the high school band program restored, the swimming pool and auditorium available for student and community use at no cost to taxpayers, the librarian position reinstated, textbooks and supplies replenished, physical education reinstated at elementary schools, and the former football coach has been recalled as athletic director, according to school authorities.

Now that he has accomplished this, what is Jackson's next major program?

"I want to implement a computer program for high school kids in the regular education program," he said.

The superintendent said that this could be done with some of the existing computers on hand now, a purchase of a few more, and the use of current faculty members.

Field named for Lau

In honor of one of Romulus' great native sons, the City Council and the mayor concurred Monday night that one of the city's baseball fields should be renamed and dedicated to the late Charlie Lau.

"I don't know about the rest of you," said Councilman Barry Bauman, "but I used to get goosebumps whenever the Tigers would play the Yankees or the White Sox and the announcer would say 'There's coach Charlie Lau of Romulus, one of the great coaches in baseball.'"

Lau died March 18 following a 9-month battle with cancer.

Council President Mary Ann Banks said that Lau "was a credit to the sport and a credit to our city." Tentatively, the dedication will take place during Michigan Week, which is May 19-26.

Brainstorm

Romulus to meet with local commercial developers

Officials of the City of Romulus have scheduled the third business and commercial developers brainstorming session for Friday, at the Holiday Inn in Romulus. Co-hosted by Mayor Beverly McAnally and Charles Hazen, program executive for the Michigan Department of Commerce Office of Business Assistance, the session will be primarily for landholders, realtors and developers.

The third in a series of four meetings, it will strive to enhance the city's ability to service and support local business and commercial development efforts, identify existing potential projects that encourage both start-up and growth business, according to a city spokesman.

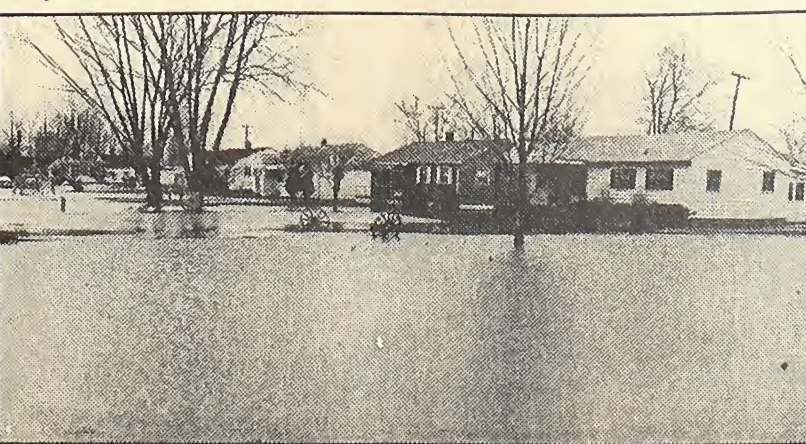

The meeting will also prioritize projects for follow-up by city staff and consultants, and explore future opportunities for interaction between the city, land holders, developers and realtors, he added.

The meeting, which will begin at 9:30 a.m., will provide a relaxed atmosphere where all can "roll up their sleeves" and do some creative thinking and provide an arena of open discussion, he said.

The first two sessions included members of the industrial, manufacturing, business and commercial community. The conclusion of the series of meetings will be a joint effort of all groups to develop strategy and is planned for May.

Signs of spring?

Water, water everywhere. That was the plight of many area residents last week as spring rains and warm temperatures brought more water than the area could handle turning roads and lawns into lakes. Driving was treacherous business, as was trying to find access to several homes. Swimming anyone?

Suggestions

Committee submits school recommendations

Achievement tests for graduating seniors, a computer science requirement for high schoolers, and a well-defined "career ladder" for teachers are among the 11 recommendations of a recently formed Van Buren Schools parent and educator committee.

But school officials say that while they will study the recommendations closely, budget woes will prevent speedy implementation of any of the proposals.

The 20-member committee recently submitted a special report to the Board of Education for further review. The purpose of the committee was to study the recommendations of the much-publicized "A Nation at Risk" report, completed by the National Commission on Excellence in Education last May.

The "Nation at Risk" report drew national attention, urging American educators to fight a "rising tide of mediocrity," by beefing up educational requirements in the public schools.

Many, but not all, of the committee proposals matched those recommended by the commission. School Superintendent Dr. Elvin Peets noted that the committee kept a watchful eye both on the districts financial realities and the specific needs of Van Buren students.

"For example, the commission recommended a seven-hour school day," he said. "But our aim right now is just to try to get back to six hours." (The school district has stayed on the five-hour schedule for three years, because of financial problems and repeated failure of millage proposal increases.)

Committee members also didn't follow suit on the commission proposal to require three years of mathematics and science for high school students, and install foreign language training in the elementary schools.

The committee felt it was "unrealistic" to raise graduation requirements as long as the shortened school day was in effect, Peets explained. "In addition, the committee took into consideration that many of our seniors aren't headed for college," he added.

(Graduating seniors are currently required to complete two years of math and science, and those headed for college are encouraged to take a foreign language.)

The superintendent identified four "top priority" recommendations of the "At Risk" committee: Lengthen school day to six hours, with an optional seventh hour; Use achievement tests both for promoting students and for graduating them; Increase high school Social Studies graduation requirements from two-and-a-half to three years, and institute a one-half year computer requirement.

The social studies and computer requirement might be difficult to implement with the shortened day, Peets said. But he added that the board would "look seriously" at the shifts in the event of a millage increase, which will probably be proposed in spring.

Use of achievement tests will help ensure that "no high school student should pass through the system without achieving some basic skills," Peets noted. The achievement tests might also be instituted in the lower grades, he suggested. Three of the 11 recommendations pertained specifically to teachers: increasing teachers' salaries to be "professionally competitive," provide for an 11-month work year for interested teachers; and developing a career ladder which distinguishes between beginning instructors, experienced teachers and "master" teachers.

The committee findings confirmed that Van Buren Schools teachers' salaries are not comparable to many of their peers in the county, according to the report. "Again, this is a matter where we'd need more money to take action," the superintendent noted.

Committee members included: (board members) Barbara Faler and Antoinette Schiesler, (parents) Sharron Russell, Denise Sprague, Kathleen Fisher, Jean Troxell, and Thomas Troxell, (teachers) Cynthia Coleman, Cynthia McPherson, Gordon Mattingly, Michael Smelt, Mary Lou Feight, Kathleen Gray, and Donna Hidenfelter, (principals) Theresa Green, Donald Priest, William Sparrow, James Richendollar, (administrators) Director of Instruction Doug Brown and Peets.

Public hearings set on noise abatement

State Representative Edward E. Mahalak (D-Romulus) has announced that the Department of Transportation will be conducting public hearings on proposed noise abatement walls along I-94 in Romulus.

"This is an issue that I and the constituents of this area have been concerned about for a long time," said Mahalak.

"The noise level along these freeways is absolutely unbelievable, and studies have shown it to be far above federal levels," he said.

Adding that part of the noise problem has been alleviated east of "The department is giving people the opportunity to discuss many aspects of the sound barrier problem, and I'm hoping the people of the area can find time to attend . . ." — State Rep. Edward Mahalak

Wayne Road along I-94, Mahalak said he was pleased that swift action will be taken by the department to take care of the area just west of Wayne Road.

The public hearings are scheduled for 8 p.m., Thursday, April 12, Romulus City Hall, 11111 Wayne Road.

Mahalak noted that the reason for these hearings is to give the public an opportunity to discuss proposed plans by the department to build walls to reduce traffic noise levels.

The Romulus project would extend from Wayne Road to east of Michael Road.

Mahalak noted further that noise abatement measures on I-94 between Ozga and Shook roads, just west of the Detroit Metropolitan Airport would also be considered by the department.

"The department staff will be at the Romulus City Hall before the public hearing from 3:30 to 5 p.m. April 12, to meet informally with interested persons," Mahalak said.

"The department is giving the people the opportunity to discuss many aspects of the sound barrier problem, and I'm hoping the people of the area can find time to attend the hearings," he said.

Fire investigation continues

Police in Romulus are still baffled by a suspected arson fire that claimed the life of one man and injured three others Feb. 29 at Morgan Manor, an apartment complex located at 35570 Margaret.

Ronald David Malick, 37, of Detroit was killed in the blaze. He was reportedly visiting his ex-wife and daughter at the time.

"We're still working on the case, still investigating, but so far we haven't been able to come up with much," said Detective Sgt. David Early, who has been assigned to the suspected arson case.

"We have no potential arrests at this time," explained Early, who added that police are still seeking citizen cooperation in solving the crime. "Because of the serious nature of this type of crime, we are depending on someone helping us get the information we still need," Early said.

Local police may be reached by dialing 941-8400. The state "Arson Control" telephone number is (517) 322-0469.

Valerie Higgins named to new post

Valerie Smith Higgins, a sales representative for Associated Newspapers, has been promoted to district sales coordinator for the Belleville Enterprise and the Romulus Roman.

She takes the place of Bert Osterberg, who retired recently after 34 years on the job. Higgins will handle all area display advertising in addition to developing and promoting special tabloids.

A lifelong Belleville resident,

It makes me really happy to be working for my home town paper . . ."
— Valerie Higgins

Higgins described her transfer from the Wayne office as "going home again."

"It makes me really happy to be working for my hometown paper," she said. "I've been reading the Enterprise since I was a little girl, and I used to send in little items about organizations I belonged to, like the Jaycettes."

"I always felt that people in a community should be as involved with their newspaper as possible," Higgins emphasized.

"I am very pleased that Valerie Higgins has accepted the responsibility of overseeing advertising operations for both the Enterprise and Roman publications," noted Associated Newspaper Publisher David J. Willey. "Trying to fill the shoes of a talent such as Bert Osterberg is a tall order. Valerie, however, attacks her responsibilities with enthusiasm, dedication and a sense of purpose," he added.

Higgins began her career with Associated Newspapers as a reporter in the fall of 1981, then switched to the advertising department a year later. Previously she worked in cosmetics sales for Saks Fifth Avenue and Hudsons, both in the Fairlane Town Center in Dearborn.

The Belleville native's involvement in community affairs includes coordinating the Strawberry Festival parade and contest for three years. She received the Outstanding Community Service Award from the Belleville/Van Buren Chamber of Commerce in recognition of her efforts.

Higgins has been active in efforts to promote cable television in the area. She hosted and produced "Visit with Valerie," a 30-minute cable talk show sponsored by Omnicom of Plymouth.

A graduate of Belleville High, Higgins has studied at Wayne County Community College. The mother of Natalie, 14, Kyle, 9, and Lydia, 7, she is a leader in local Girl Scout and 4-H programs.

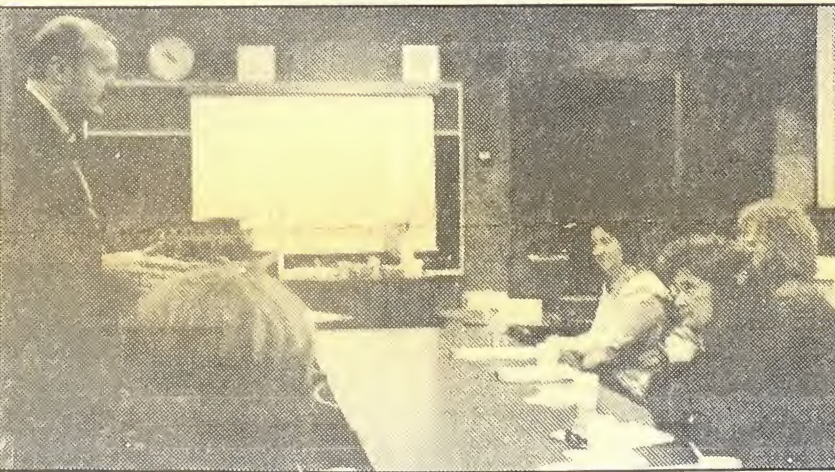

"I know that Valerie will serve our advertising customers with the same dedication with which Bert served them for so many years," concluded Willett.

Bedell meets with teachers

Romulus School Superintendent William Bedell met with his teaching staff for the first time since the controversial pay roll-back in November 1982.

The meeting consisted of a series of separate talks in nine schools during a 4-week period.

Bedell began his talks with an apology, expressing his regret for the hardship that his pay cut caused teachers and their families.

School Superintendent William Bedell at Head Start School in one of his meetings with district teachers.

An arbitration ruling last December restored the pay cut during a 5-year period. The first payment was made in December.

Teachers' salaries were slashed 22 percent in an effort to balance the budget with a $3 million loan.

The teachers, represented by the Michigan Education Association, took the district to court in four jurisdictions: state and federal courts and the tenure commission as well as the Michigan Employment Relations Commission.

All the suits were dropped when the pay cut was restored.

Bedell invited questions and discussion from the teachers after his opening comments and a slide presentation on education in the future.

The superintendent will be meeting with other employee groups in the near future, including secretaries, para/program assistants, cafeteria workers, bus drivers, custodians, tech aides, hall monitors and maintenance workers.

The purpose will be to discuss the state of the district and the upcoming millage on June 11, according to Bedell.

Parents fund science fair

The Romulus Parent Area Council (RPAC) awarded a $1,500 block grant to fund a district science fair.

The money will be used to provide prizes and cash awards to Romulus science students on the elementary and secondary level in the spring of 1985.

It was also stipulated in the grant that parochial students residing in the city are eligible for the prizes.

Tom Baldwin, chairperson of the upcoming science fair, said that the event "is a first" and hopefully will turn into an annual affair.

Stevens transfers to Hartland

Huron High School Principal Jon Stevens has accepted an appointment as the high school principal of Hartland School District, located between Flint and Ann Arbor.

Stevens was principal for four years at Huron High.

The theme of the contest is "Romulus" and the purpose of the theme is to encourage youth to express their feelings about the community in which they live, he added.

There will be awards presented to all who enter including one grand award per category.

All entries must be postdated no later than April 19 and may be sent to R.P.A.C., 36540 Grant Road, Romulus, MI. 48174 or may be dropped off at the Romulus Public Library or any school secretary.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By John Brimble

Here's another chicken salad for your repertoire: mix dressing of orange juice and oil, with a touch of red wine vinegar and mustard, and an egg to bind it all together; toss in julienne strips of cooked chicken, celery, red bell pepper, and green onions. Add cashews for crunch, orange slices for garnish.

Add 6 Tbs. canned corn to your next batch of corn muffins. Super flavor and texture.

No-salt-added canned food still tastes good because manufacturers have rebalanced herbs and spices to perk up soup and vegetables.

Leftover coffee won't taste stale if you add a cinnamon stick to the pot when you reheat it.

Want perfect cake layers? Before baking, use your kitchen scale to make sure that pans have an equal amount of batter.

what's that sound? ... by steve o'leary

'Jump' for this album

"JUMP!"
Van Dyke Parks
(Warner Bros.)

"Jump!", the new album by Van Dyke Parks, is so out of place in the 80's with its 60-ish almost psychedelic sounds, so weird in that it's the soundtrack for a musical that doesn't exist, and so refreshing just because it is so different and unexpected that it may turn out to be one of the most popular LP's of the year — for those that discover it anyway.

Remember the stories of Uncle Remus and Brer Rabbit? Me too, although they aren't talked about much these days, for reasons Parks himself addresses: "These stories have been branded as racist," he explains, "but it's quite the opposite. Brer Rabbit is the proxy for the enslaved man."

"These tales deal with such timeless concerns as famine in the land, infidelity, domesticity and alcoholism — with high humor and grand mystery."

Perhaps the real miracle here is how Parks put such dark subjects into such bright pop songs. It literally sparkles through the amplifier and speakers, filling the listeners head with dazzling panoramas.

Parks, who has more in common with Cole Porter than Randy Newman, has also done the unusual in his orchestration. He mixes classical string sections with banjos, mandolins, harmonicas and french horns, all of which is very reminiscent of the best Walt Disney soundtracks, something he previously accomplished in collaboration with Harry Nilsson on the underrated soundtrack to "Popeye" a few years back.

Often called a musical genius over the past two decades, Van Dyke Parks has never shown it more handsomely than he does here with "Jump!". It can be enjoyed on so many different levels that it's like getting two or three albums at once, all totally enjoyable and accessible, as well as literary-minded lyrically.

Parks, who also does the music for Shelly Duvall's "Faerie Tale Theatre" for Showtime cable network, explains it all very simply: "My love for these stories — which attack racism and poverty at its roots — stretches back to my boyhood and they are something I want to pass on to my children through the magic of minstrel musical theatre."

No one, with the exception of hard-core heavy metal freaks can go wrong with this album. "Jump!" You'll be richly rewarded if you do!

GEORGE WASHINGTON (Part I)

Sweeping eight-hour tele-flick chronicling the life of America's first great leader from ages 11 to 51, beginning in 1743 and taking him through his journeyman days as a young surveyor, his controversial involvement in the French and Indian War, his premature retirement from military life, his return to lead America's colonies to independence in the Revolutionary War, and, at war's end, his subduing of a threatened coup by his own officers. The epic drama also unfolds his personal relationships, including his hidden love for Sally Fairfax, who was happily wed to George's best friend, and his marriage to the young widow, Martha Custis. It restores Washington as a man of flesh and blood and dispels the myths that have made him a marble man; the fact is, just as he never chopped down a cherry tree and never wore a white wig, so he never wore wooden dentures!

Being there . . .

"... and when a journalist turns into a political junkie he will sooner or later start raving and babbling in print about things that only a person who has been there can possibly understand."
— Hunter S. Thompson, in "Fear and Loathing: On the Campaign Trail"

Is there a better way to spend a Thursday afternoon than being pushed, cramped, elbowed and bullied in the 100 degree heat at Metropolitan Airport, waiting to see a politician who is more than an hour late? And with with the airport lobby bar closed yet?

The unmitigated answer is: there's gotta be! At least 97 come to mind right off the bat!

I'm not being unpatriotic mind you. I'm just finding my niche, so to speak. You see, certain jobs require certain things. One of these obligations, should you happen to work for a newspaper, is to complain. My colleagues at the airport sure did, and not without good reason.

Were it not for the heat, the crowd and the unthinkable bizzare circumstances that must have led to the closing of the bar, there still would have been the guys with the badges to contend with. Secret Service agents. Worse yet, temporary Secret Service agents. "You watch," said our trusty, chief photographer — who has been through it all many times before — "the people who'll give us the most trouble will be the auxiliary police and agents, the ones who only get to wear their badges one or two days a year." Sure enough, he was right.

It didn't matter if a reporter or photographer had top security clearance, as evidenced by the plastic I.D. they wore around their necks — if a guy with a plastic color-coded button decided he didn't like you, that was it. One photographer from UPI sarcastically replied to a makeshift agent who was herding him around "What next, isn't my smile up to your standards? Don't you like my cologne? Jerk!"

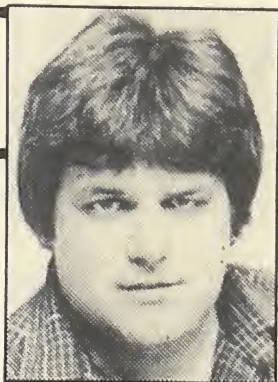

The next day, when Rev. Jesse Jackson was scheduled to make an appearance at an Inkster church, the same crowd was present as was at the airport. As we walked in, all of the photographers' bags were carefully checked, lest any of them carry a nuclear bomb. As I walked by the agents, who had just searched the aforementioned Lothar Konietzko's camera bag, I nearly asked him if he wanted to check my notebook and pen, too, but thought better of it. Something about those guys told me that having a sense of humor was not a big factor in getting their jobs. Obviously, since the pen is mightier than sword, it's still no match for a Nikon.

Afterwards, as everyone was milling around outside and local auxiliary policemen were ignoring the security clearance badges ("they probably don't even know what they are," someone said), a reporter from the Chicago Sun-Times asked me if I was going along to Ann Arbor on the Jackson bus. After fighting the urge to tell him to say "Hi" to Roger Ebert (or is it Gene Siskel?), I cleverly responded "uh, no," knowing full-well that I couldn't if I wanted to.

"Me neither," he said. "It's the same thing at every stop anyway. The same speeches, the same questions, everything. I don't blame you for not going," he said, unaware that if I tried to enter the bus I'd probably have eight FBI guns trained on me before I got within 10 feet.

So, without leaving the area, I learned that everything at every stop of the tour for both Mondale and Jackson would be the same as I had seen here, except that they'd probably be even later showing up in some places than they were others. So, in a way, I experienced "Life on the Political Road." The one with the bars closed. But, I guess you had to be there to understand ...

Credit where credit is due

Wednesday morning at Associated is the time when we take stock of what we did, and did not do, for our six publications of that week. Most weeks the "dids" column far exceeds the "did nots."

Last week we counted the "dids," but in totaling out the "did nots", we found one item we feel we must take the time to acknowledge.

We at Associated feel we have been blessed with the greatest talent of all. He is at times more identified with the six newspapers we publish than the eagle on our mastheads. To those of us who work with him and those who have listened to orders on where to stand or which way to tilt your head, he's just Lothar.

A Michigan Press Association award winning photographer, Lothar is lovable, temperamental and a patient teacher of the fledgling shutterbugs that populate the editorial department.

We turn to Lothar to salvage a dull front page, and he meets the challenge each and every time. He is quick to let us know a good photo layout, but even quicker to count the number of photos not used in any given week.

Our error last week was not giving credit where credit was due. In spite of surly Secret Service agents, crowded conditions and early deadlines, Lothar came through for us with outstanding photos of a visit to Inkster by Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson. While the quality of the photos was easily recognizable as Lothar's work, we failed to give proper acknowledgement, with a photo credit line.

We would like to take this moment to offer Lothar an apology for the oversight, to say thank you for a job well done and to say, hopefully, it won't happen again.

Lothar, we have our differences, but in this case we are in agreement. We goofed. We hope you will forgive us and possibly ... could you take a photo at ...

Trying . . .

For years, I have found the word trying, extremely, well, trying. The world, it appears, is full of people who drop that word into their conversations in order to "hedge their bets", if you will.

To use the word "trying" in a conversation indicates, to me, at times, a predisposition to failure. Conversational gambits like: "I am trying to get this work done," or "I am trying to sell advertising," "I am trying to get the cleaning done," and "I am trying to make money," are all indications, to me, of people who may be going through the motions, but may fully intend to fail. If, in fact, they do fail, they have already determined that failure to be a perfectly acceptable outcome of their attempts.

People are so afraid of failing and yet they constantly use word choices and take action, or fail to take action that pre-determines their own failure. There's a line from the song, "Impossible Dream" that says, "and the world would be better for this, that when one man broken and covered with scars, strove with his last ounce of courage, to reach the unreachable star." Don Quixote may, in fact, have been just trying, but you couldn't tell him that. He knew he was going to succeed.

There is another old saying, "if you think you can, you can, and if you think you can't, you can't." I suggest to you that those who say constantly that they are "trying" are those who think they can't. I am not suggesting that Don Quixote should be a role model, there are others, perhaps who might be better examples on which to pattern our lives. I wonder if Columbus said, "I am trying to go to the new world," or if he said, "I am going to the new world." I wonder if we would have succeeded if President John F. Kennedy had set the national standard in the space race by saying, "We're going to try to see if possibly we can beat the Russians."

Come on folks, let's stop trying and let's start doing.

I am reminded that there are three types of people in the world — those who get things done, those who watch things being done, and those who wonder what was done. Apparently those who get things done are not those who go around "trying". They are doing ... they are committed ... they are goal oriented ... they go about their tasks in life with every intention of succeeding. They apply massive energy to accomplishing those tasks that they have targeted.

They don't ask if it can be done ... they ask how it can be done. They go about life talking about the solutions instead of the problems. They talk about winning instead of losing. They think about the joy of winning instead of the risk of losing.

Perhaps the root cause of the problem today with our plastic, and hollow American society, is that we have become a nation of "tryers."

Thank God there are enough "doers" to make up for the shortcomings of all the "tryers." If all of us could learn to internalize more of the wisdom that we are exposed to every day, wisdom that somehow just trips on by us, perhaps we would all be better for it. We read newspapers, we watch television, we read books or have the opportunity to read them. We go to church and hear sermons. We read or have access to the Bible, the greatest book of learning this world has ever known. But somehow we manage to avoid living our lives in such a way that would indicate that the "antidote" for the disease of "trying" is ever ingested, let alone effective.

Perhaps we should adopt a law requiring that the word "trying" should be substituted in all cases for the word "failing" because that, in effect, is what we are saying when we use it.

Next time someone says "I am trying to do something," recognize that what they are really saying is that they are failing to accomplish that task. The world would be better off if we would all stop trying to do things and start making things happen.

See you next week.

Going home again . . .

I'd really like to meet Thomas Wolfe. Yes, I know he's no longer of this planet, but I'd still like to meet him just so I could tell him how off the wall he was when he wrote: "You can't go home again."

Thomas, listen to me, you can go home. It's not easy, but it's possible. Believe me, I know because I did it. It took a lot of difficult swallowing, choking back of tears and admissions that plans for a better life didn't pan out.

There's comfort in going home. Things have a tendency to be the way you remembered them. The people you know are still there, the scenery hasn't changed, and the problems are still the same.

It's almost like watching a soap opera, where one day in the lives of the characters takes a year to complete.

What you discover is how many of your friends are really your friends, how much a part of your family you really are, and how your office chair has yet to lose the contours of your posterior.

I'd be a millionaire today, if I had a quarter for every time I've been asked if I miss Florida. My pat answer has been no. No, I don't miss the headaches and the heartaches of the Sunshine State. Many a night I have fallen in bed, weary of the burdens coming home has placed on me and crying over what might have been.

I could spend the rest of my lifetime, pondering the ifs and thats of Florida, but there's little time for such luxuries. The telephone rings, and it's someone requesting something they've requested of me for as many years as I've been sitting in this office chair.

Granted, I was only gone for three months, but the lack of longevity of my move made coming home all the more difficult. Under the stiff-upper-lip exterior is a

Hawley rates 'thank you'

To the editor,
I would like to thank Mr. Bill Hawley for the endless hours that he puts in as supervisor of the Wayne Recreation basketball program.
He runs a class league for young boys and girls and receives no money for his efforts. Mr. Hawley's own children are in junior high and high school, but he is still putting in time with other children.
He's a winner.

Poem honors crash victim

To the Editor:
I'm submitting this poem on behalf of the Stevens family, whose father was killed in a automobile accident March 2, 1984 on Henry Ruff and Michigan Avenue by a drunk driver running a red light. I'm hoping, maybe it can help some of my sisters and brothers. It goes like this:
I've been so sad here of late and grief stricken, didn't think I could make it pass the night, and I'll say, "don't cry too long."

When in the middle of the night, I'll think about, no one knows the day and what it'll bring, praying it had never brought, I'll say, "don't cry too long."

Tomorrow may seem forever, you'll wish you'd never saw today, the Lord has a way of letting our today's be bearable but, "don't cry too long."

Then out of nowhere, the mirror of my mind let me see and helped me face the inevitability of coping with the Master's plan and you know? "I'm not crying anymore."

Help keep library open

To the editor:
Will the library doors always stay open? Not necessarily. On the governmental lists of priorities, libraries happen to be considered on the luxury side.

How can we guarantee that the doors do stay open? Only one way — careful planning and widespread community support. The library staff in cooperation with Van Buren Township Community Energy Management Program V.A.L.U.E., featured a special section during the March 24 open house on the efficient uses and management of energy. This section alone could benefit every householder in the entire community — if and when they would check the information out.

Friends of the library, a new community support group, will sponsor an organizational meeting, Saturday, April 7 at 10 a.m. The friends can encompass all age groups, and patrons who wish to participate. We hope you will take the time to join us.

On April 11 (Wednesday) at 1 p.m., there will be an informational community luncheon at the Brass Belle Restaurant on Sumpter Road. Our guest speaker will be Heather Ion, of Ypsilanti — who successfully led the drive in Ypsilanti and Ypsilanti Township to bring the communities together, and form a Library District. (Please make reservations at 699-8900, Clerk Dudick's Office, at the Township).

Our three communities certainly NEED the library, and now the library NEEDS us. Even if you only have to use the library once in your lifetime — the way things are going, can you be sure it will be there?

Opinion's proper place

To the Editor:
When I was but a child, I learned many things under the careful guidance and instruction of my father. I learned the value of careful listening, fair treatment and the necessity to speak or act when your informed judgement leads you to believe that something is wrong or unjust. That is why I feel compelled to write this letter.

I was most incredulous that you would choose to reprint Mr. Padget's comments on the front page of the March 7 edition (Mother Knows Best). I make no claim that Mr. Padget is not entitled to his opinion, surely that is everyone's right. Sadly, Mr. Padget's opinion is neither new or newsworthy. I hope in the future you will use better journalistic judgement, and put Mr. Padget's opinions where they belong, on the opinion page of this newspaper. I also hope that in the future Mr. Padget will not purport to speak for all the citizens of Canton. He surely does not speak for many citizens, such as myself, who feel that Maria Sterlini is a compassionate and capable public servant.

Of course, the recent furor over this entire Merit Commission issue makes titillating headlines, especially when the reporting is neither balanced or unbiased. You have neglected to put before the public all the facts pertaining to this issue. Ms. Sterlini has made appearances before the commission to respond to its subpoena. She has stated to the Merit Commission that they may have full and unimpeded access to any public records under her control. After many months of attempting to privately and publicly discuss her concerns with the board (to no avail), Ms. Sterlini advised the board that she initiated contact with impartial and objective authorities outside the township regarding these matters.

However, I believe that I understand the essence of Sterlini's concerns. The Merit Commission is a public body mandated only to investigate issues related to union personnel and classified employees within the township. They have no jurisdiction related to elected offices and non-classified employees within the township. To discuss matters not within the proper jurisdiction of the Merit Commission would also set a serious and dangerous precedent. By getting this issue outside the political arena, I trust Ms. Sterlini's position will be vindicated. Perhaps then Mr. Padget will be able to indulge in a feast of eating his own ill-spoken, harsh and opinionated words.

(Editor's note: Trustee Robert Padget's statement which we reprinted was read aloud, to the board and audience, at a public meeting and was, in fact, a part of the official recorded township minutes. It, under those circumstances, was no longer a matter for the editorial or opinion pages, but a part of our attempt to accurately and fairly report the occurrences at that meeting. Additionally, Mr. Padget had no qualms whatsoever about taking the full and public responsibility for his statements which he identified as his own.)

bruised and battered ego, not really ready to answer the many questions that are asked and unprepared for the understanding offered.

There is truth in the story of the prodigal son. That I can attest to personally. Yes, you can go home. Home will never be the same. Not because what you remember has changed, but because the person seeing it has.

It is a humbling experience to come home. The journey back starts out with anticipation, but by Mile 500 the dread sets in. How do you face the people you left behind; how do you explain? By Mile 1,000 it's depression. For the first time in my life, I wanted to turn and run anywhere but home.

There aren't too many friends stirring at 12:30 p.m., but at Mile 1,241, at the foot of the driveway of the house I never expected to see again, I realized it would be all right . . . someday. The porch light was on, and, although my dearest friend had given in to the sandman hours earlier, I knew she was there waiting, anticipating.

It has been that way ever since. No one has judged me for what I did. They have been warm and friendly and have left me to make peace with myself. They have been understanding of my discomfort and of my fluctuations in moods. They have been, first and foremost, my friends.

To each and every one of you, I say a heartfelt thank you. I hope someday I can reciprocate.

Yes, Thomas Wolfe, you can go home.

All Area wrestling squad is announced

Some of the wrestlers are league champions. Many qualified for the state tournament. Most have placed first or second at various Invitational meets. All have impressive dual meet records.

These wrestlers are members of The Associated Newspapers' All Area Wrestling Team for 1984. In an area that has produced several championship squads, the members of the All Area dream team stand out for their accomplishments.

Following is a look at the grapplers and their records of achievement:

JOHN BURCROFF (98 pounds) of Romulus claimed second place at the district tournament and third at the regionals to qualify for the state competition, where he won two matches before elimination. Despite suffering from a pulled leg muscle, Burcroff posted a 15-5 record, including a third-place finish at the Lincoln Park Invitational.

A three-year letterman, the junior recorded a 30-7-1 mark last season. He also performs for the school's track team.

DAVE DAVIS (105 pounds) of Wayne Memorial High School served as captain while leading his team with a 19-5 won-lost record. Despite a season marred by a dislocated elbow, the senior won the Montrose, League and District tournaments and finished fourth in the Regionals.

DAN GIBSON (112 pounds), a junior at John Glenn, finished the year with an impressive 34-3 record. In this, his second year on the team, he also tallied first place finishes at the John Glenn Invitational, Glenn Rockets, League, District and Regional tournaments. Gibson placed third in his weight division in the State tournament.

MIKE ROSSI (119 pounds), a senior at John Glenn, had first place finishes at Plymouth Salem and the John Glenn Rocket Invitational en route to a 34-7 year. He was also named the MVP at Plymouth Salem.

Rossi also finished an impressive second in the League, District and Regionals, and ended up fourth at State.

TONY SEBASTIAN (126 pounds) of Belleville captured firsts at the Belleville, Wayne Memorial and Monroe Invationals and at the regional tournament. The senior won the league championship and claimed a fourth place at the state meet.

In addition to posting a 31-6 record, Sebastian topped all Belleville grapplers in net takedowns with 59 (He recorded 70 takedowns while his opponents registered 11 against him). Sebastian lettered for two years after wrestling for the junior varsity as a sophomore.

JOHN JEANNOTTE (132 pounds) of Plymouth Salem was a key performer on a league championship squad, posting a 32-10 record to earn a first-place berth on the All-League contingent. The senior claimed first at the John Glenn, Wayne Memorial and Monroe tournaments.

Jeannotte, who served as Salem's captain, claimed second

DAVE SHAREEF (138), a junior at Wayne Memorial, finished the year with a record of 24-14, an impressive mark for a second-year man.

Although Shareef didn't win any tournaments, he placed second in the League tournament, and third in the Schoolcraft Invitational and the Districts. He is considered one of the top area wrestlers returning next year.

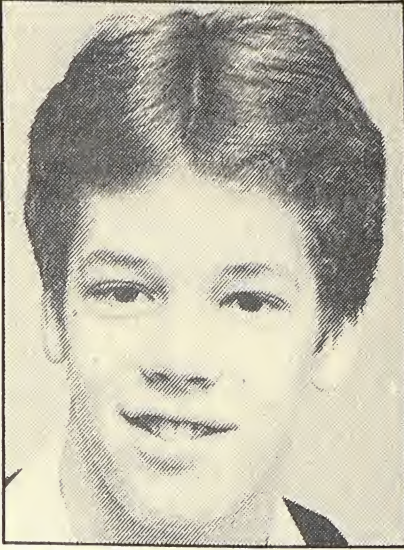

ANDY WARD (145 pounds) of Plymouth Salem claimed firsts at the Monroe and League tournaments en route to a 29-14 season. The junior took fourth place in Regional competition and is considered one of the top performers returning for next year (Salem won the Western Lakes title with a squad that featured only three seniors).

A two-year letterman, Ward also plays fullback for the school's soccer team.

SCOTT LUCAS (155 pounds) of John Glenn recorded an 18-7 mark to help the Rockets win the Northwest Suburban Activities Association title. Although injured most of the year, the junior placed first at the league meet and qualified for the regionals.

Rodd Wohlfeil was selected as the top senior in the state in the 100-yard freestyle. He placed first in that event and also swam anchor for the medley and 400 freestyle relay teams during the annual Michigan-Indiana meet conducted last Saturday at Eastern Michigan University.

Lau is mourned

The City of Romulus and the entire baseball world is mourning the loss of Charlie Lau. Charlie, who died of cancer at the age of 50 last week, is remembered locally for his athletic prowess at Romulus High back in the 50's, and nationally not as a major league player but as the batting coach who helped so many big league batters reach their potential.

I had only met Charlie one time and that was unfortunately at his mother's funeral a year and a half ago. I do, however know his father, Charlie Sr. very well and know of his pride in his son's endeavors. Our heartfelt condolences go out to Charlie Sr. and his family.

OOPS
On our last visit I incorrectly informed you that CART was headquartered in Southfield. It is located in Farmington Hills. I think I forgot my friend Vito LoPiccolo will straighten me out. Vito, by the way, is now hosting a radio show called "Motor Sports" which can be heard every Tuesday night at 8 o'clock on WCAR. Local and national figures in the world of motor sports will be featured.

ANOTHER GOODBYE
Detroit Red Wing promotions man Al Blade (good name for a hockey man, right?) is leaving the Wings to go to Tulsa, Oklahoma. Al will head up the Little Caesar's franchise for Tulsa County. If you're ever in Tulsa, stop in and see Al, and if you have a copy of this column you'll get a small cheese pizza free. Good luck Al, we're gonna miss ya.

CONGRATS
The "Comish", Nick Kerbaway, has announced that five new members will be added to the Michigan Hall of Fame. The honorees, who will be inducted May 22, are John Fetser, the former owner of the Detroit Tigers and one of his players, slugging first baseman "Stormin'" Norman Cash, speed skater Jeanne Omelunchuk, Piston's All Star guard Dave Bing and the late Michigan Tech hockey coach John MacInnes.

DON'T PASS ON THIS
OK Tiger fans, here you go. Pro Am Sports System, which will be known as PASS from here on in, will be televising 80 Tiger road and home games during the '84 season. PASS will be offering at least one live event on prime time TV 365 days a year. They are currently negotiating with the Red Wings and Pistons. The requirements are that you must have cable TV and that your cable company must be one of those offering PASS. So sit back, open a can of beer and wait to hear from your wife's lawyer.

RECREATION REPORT
People on the amateur boxing scene are talking about the feud between Golden Gloves and the new kid on the block, Motor City Diamond Gloves. It seems like some Detroit-based pugilists didn't like the way the staid old Golden Glovers were doing business, so they decided to form their own organization. Sponsored by the Detroit Recreation Department, they have set up a "Do it in Detroit" tournament at Cobo Hall.

The first bouts were held March 23 with another card to be held March 30 and the finals April 14th.

Figure skating fans will be able to watch their favorite sport this weekend as the Livonia Parks and Recreation stages their "Greatest Show On Ice," featuring Junior Midwestern Dance Champions Jodie Balogh and Jerod Swallow.

Metro Detroit Amateur Softball Association is returning to its "Tournament of Champions" format this year. This is in conjunction with the national ASA and will allow local champions to compete nationally.

Shearard Myricks

Deadeye honored

Shearard Myricks, a 12-year-old seventh grader at Romulus Junior High School, recently collected $300 for the Easter Seals charity in the student-council sponsored Tubby's Shoot-a-thon. That figure was the highest total collected by an individual in Wayne County.

The students solicited sponsors, who would donate an amount of money — between 10¢ and $1 — for each basket made in a three-minute time period. The 17 participating students at Romulus Junior High collected a total in excess of $900.

Because Shearard accumulated the most money in the county, he has been invited to appear on the Easter Seal telethon April 1, where he will make his presentation to Detroit Lion quarterback Gary Danielson and WDIV news anchorman Mort Crim.

Two other youths from the school also collected more than $100 — Bret Manning, who received $102 in pledges and Donald Ripple, who collected $184.

The telethon begins at 11:30 p.m. Saturday, March 31 on Channel 4 and concludes the following evening at 7 p.m.

and track teams. He plans on going into engineering at either Central or Eastern University.

VAUGHN VIAR (185 POUNDS) of John Glenn registered a 34-14 mark including a league championship. The senior won the Rocket Invitational and the league crown and also qualified for the state tournament, where he won one match. He is a two-year letterman.

DON LAPORTE (198 pounds) of Belleville qualified for the state tournament after posting a 25-10 record in dual meets. The senior captured the league crown this year despite the fact he has wrestled for only two campaigns.

Laporte pinned 20 opponents to rate first on the Belleville squad in total falls.

TRACY CLINE (heavyweight) of Romulus boasted an impressive 32-10 record in his third year on the wrestling squad. Included among his top performances were seconds at Belleville, Lincoln Park and Trenton tournaments; a first at Riverview, and a third at John Glenn. After placing second at the districts and third at regionals, he won two matches at the state tournament before being defeated.

A versatile athlete, the junior also is a member of the school's football and track contingents.

WAYNE SCHIMMING was named the Associated Newspaper All-Area Coach of the Year for 1984. In this, his sixth year as mat coach at Romulus High School, he led the team to a third-place finish in the Districts.

SNOW STORM STRANDS AUTOMOBILE!!
Dear Letter Writer:
I live in Michigan and during the month of December, 1983, we had a lot of snow. I was forced to abandon my car on a freeway and was unable to retrieve it for three days. The towing company really ripped me off and I would like to write a letter to the State Police and tell them what happened.

Sincerely, J.D.

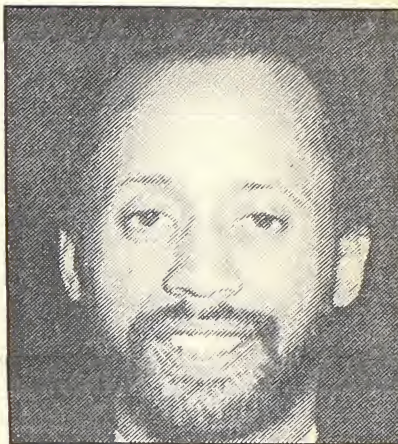

miles. As fate would have it, on Dec. 26 or 27, when my car was picked up, the owner was not present. His employee charged a $25 towing charge, stating "the owner's not here and he didn't leave a bill so it's his problem if he loses money." It seems to me that when someone's car breaks down, they have a major problem. The fact that the towing company levies a penalty because it is a "police tow" is adding salt to the wound. I sincerely feel that the Brighton Police Department as well as the Michigan State Police should give their towing business to a firm that acts in good faith and does not add a premium to an already distressed motorist.

Sincerely, J.D.

RESOLUTION
Eight days after this letter sent to the State Police, the following letter was received by J.D.
"Dear J.D.: I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for writing and making us aware of the problem you experienced with the towing company. We attempt to monitor our wrecker call list very closely but unfortunately sometimes we have to depend upon the public to point out problems such as you have. I have contacted the owner of the towing company involved and asked him to respond to the issue you have raised. If it is determined that he is abusing his position on the wrecker call list, he will be removed."

Sincerely, Michigan State Police

Inkster residents to appear at museum

ROD LUMPKIN

Willia Miller, former public health nurse; Betty carter and Helen Felton, former presidents of the Inkster Alumna Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority; Cynthia Mitchell, current Inkster chapter president, and Marilyn Stewart, chapter member.

Nimrod Lumpkin, a former Inkster resident, will perform with this jazz ensemble at the event.

Tickets, priced at $50, may be obtained by contacting the museum at 899-2500. Television personalities Dayna Eubanks and Ben Frazier will host the affair.

Dear State Police:

On December 24, 1983, Christmas Eve, my 1979 Buick Skyhawk was stranded on the highway and subsequently towed by and to a towing service in Hartland, Mich. The car was left on the highway on Dec. 22 and, as stated above, towed on Christmas Eve. The police department called and informed me of this action.

The letter is being written so that the State Police as well as the Brighton Police Department may be made aware of what I consider to be a ludicrous situation.

After being informed that my car had been towed, I placed a telephone call to the towing company. I spoke with the owner and informed him that inasmuch as it was Christmas Eve, I would see to removing the car from his premises on Dec. 26, 1983. I then asked him the towing charges and was told that I owed him $45. I then expressed to the owner that I thought the towing charge was excessive and asked him for an explanation. He stated that the reason for the charge was two-fold ...

— It was a police department tow and he charged more for those.

— It was towed a "long way".

The police department informed me that my automobile was towed approximately five

A number of former Inkster residents will play important roles at the 19th anniversary celebration for The Museum of African American History, set to begin at 6 p.m. Friday at the Engineering Society of Detroit, Farnsworth at Woodward.

Aretha Watkins, managing editor of The Michigan Chronicle and a graduate of Inkster High School, will be honored for community service along with Haley Bell, president of Bell Broadcasting Co., which owns Radio Station WCHB in Inkster.

Formerly known as the Afro-American Museum of Detroit, the museum is scheduled to be relocated at a new $5.4 million site near the Detroit Science Center and Institute of Arts. Ground breaking is set April 18.

Proceeds from ticket sales to the anniversary celebration will assist in the construction project.

Dr. Phyllis E. Robinson, an Inkster High graduate who is serving as anniversary chairperson, noted that several Inkster-area residents are serving on the committee for museum supporters—

Kim Caldwell and George Salajan II are wed

Kimberly Cardwell became the bride of George Salajan II at an early evening ceremony Nov. 12 at Zion Missionary Baptist Church in Taylor.

The church was decorated with white gladiolas and pink carnations for the candlelight ceremony officiated by Rev. Jon Rule. More than 250 guests witnessed the nuptials and enjoyed the singing of Lynn Cardwell, a sister-in-law of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Darrell and Sally Cardwell of Harrison Street in Romulus and the groom's parents are George and Betty Salajan of Castle Drive in Romulus.

For her wedding the bride chose an ivory gown accented with a sweetheart neckline and cathedral length train with schiffl lace at the hem. Alencon lace accented the beaded bodice of her dress which was styled with leg-o-mutton sleeves. Her cathedral length veil was also ivory-colored.

She carried a draping bouquet of white carnations and pink rosebuds accented with green ivy.

Matron-of-honor at the ceremony was Melisa Lesperance, a cousin of the bride from Los Angeles, Cal. She wore a dusty-rose colored chiffon dress styled with an off-the-shoulder neckline and a bustle in the rear. She wore a comb accented with azeleas in her hair and carried pink azeleas and maroon rosebuds accented with babies' breath.

Bridesmaids at the nuptials included Michell Bradley of Romulus, Julia Gassman of Taylor, Judy Genaw of Riverview, a sister of the groom, Rhonda Johnson of Los Angeles, Cal., a cousin of the bride and Shelia Nobrega of Morehead, Ky. also a cousin of the bride.

Lorrie Johnson, 5, a cousin of the bride and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson of Wellston, Ohio, acted as flowergirl for the couple while Jason Vandine, 8, a nephew of the groom and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Vandine of Rockwood assumed the duties of ringbearer for the couple.

The flowergirl was gowned in a dusty-rose chiffon dress with a ruffled neckline and a bustle in the rear. She wore a circlet of pink roses and babies' breath in her hair and carried a basket of pink rosebuds and maroon azeleas.

Ushers and groomsmen included Tim Bentley of Romulus, Tim Burkhart of Carleton, Kevin Cardwell, a brother of the bride from San Deigo, Cal., Dennis Much of Romulus and Ken Salajan also of Romulus, and a brother of the groom.

Douglas Salajan of Taylor, a brother of the groom, assumed the duties of best man for the couple.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride wore a dusty rose chiffon dress with a cape neckline and tiered front. She wore a corsage of pink azelas and maroon rose buds on her floor length dress.

The mother of the groom chose a light pink floor length gown with a pink lace overdress. She, too, wore a corsage of pink azelas and maroon rosebuds.

More than 225 guests attended a reception honoring the newlyweds at the Grecian Center in Southgate immediately following the ceremony.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Romulus High School and is employed at Heritage Hospital in Taylor.

The groom also attended Romulus High School and is employee at Jolly Ice Cream in Romulus.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Florida and will now make their home in Flat Rock.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL LAW

Connie Creager and Michael Law exchanged wedding vows during an early afternoon ceremony March 3 at St. Michael Catholic Church East in Findlay, Ohio.

Rev. John Missler, associate pastor at the church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Organist Mary Zender provided music for the service and vocalists Jerry Korte, Phil Schieber and Sandy George entertained the guests. Deb. Walkowski accompanied the singers, playing both the flute and piano.

The church was decorated with mauve and white mums, stephanotis, and white candles for the nuptials.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orvil Creager of Hamler, Ohio and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Law of Wayne.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown of white organza accented with floral appliques at the bodice and hemline and featuring a cathedral train. Her Juliet cap held her cathedral-length veil in place. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

Acting as matron of honor at the ceremony was a sister of the bride, Julie Kindred of Bluffton, Ohio. Maid of honor at the wedding was Peggy Creager, also a sister of the bride, from Hamler, Ohio.

Both wore sheer, mauve crepe street-length gowns featuring cap sleeves and matching cummerbunds with softly draping bodices. They carried arm bouquets of mauve roses, purple statice and babies' breath.

Bridesmaids included Jeanne Law of Wayne, a sister of the groom, Kathleen Hartz of Conneville, Pa. and Jill Schumacher of Perrysburg, Ohio.

Flowergirls at the wedding were Cindy and Kelly Creager of Hamler, Ohio and Lauren and Jaime Kindred of Bluffton, Ohio, all nieces of the bride. They wore short, white, ruffled dresses with pink satin sashes and carried nosegay bouquets of pink rosebuds and babies' breath.

Assuming the duties of best man at the ceremony was a brother of the groom, William Law of Cary, N. Ca.

Ushers and groomsmen included Gerald Law of Wayne, also a brother of the groom, Larry Creager of Findlay, Ohio, a brother of the bride, Jeff Tollison of Belleville and Casry Clark of Wayne.

The mother of the bride chose a burgundy-colored, street-length dress with long sleeves and a boat neckline with a matching cummerbund for the wedding. She wore an orchid wrist corsage in shades of white and mauve. The mother of the groom wore a grey semi-sheer crepe gown with long sleeves. She wore a corsage of mauve roses and heather.

Following the exchange of their wedding vows, the couple was honored at a dinner dance reception at the American Legion Hall in Findlay, Ohio.

The bride earned her B.A. at Findlay college in 1980. She is presently employed as a counselor of admissions at the same school.

The groom is a 1976 graduate of Wayne Memorial High School and a 1981 graduate of Wayne State University where he earned his bachelor of science degree in civil engineering. He is presently employed as an industrial marketing engineer with Columbia Gas of Ohio in Findlay. Following a week-long honeymoon in Mexico, the newlyweds became residents of Findlay where they now make their home.
